MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the City of Walnut Creek's Public Art Program is to integrate art into the City's everyday environment and build a dynamic, exciting and engaging place to live, visit, and do business. Through public art, the Program aims to make our public spaces more welcoming and to create a dialogue between artists and the community that honors our ideals, histories, and shared values.

INTRODUCTION & BACKGROUND

Even before the formal implementation of a public art master plan, the City of Walnut Creek displayed its commitment to public art, and its belief that public art programs are valuable to the community. Walnut Creek officially encouraged public art projects in the community in 1982 when the City Council approved the first public art requirements and guidelines. In 1983, City Council added these public art requirements to its Design Review Ordinance and processes.

In 2000, the Public Art Master Plan (PAMP) was adopted by the City Council and has since been used to guide the City's Public Art Program. The PAMP created new criteria for the selection and prioritization of potential sites for public and private art projects, guidelines for appropriate art responses, and procedures for art review and selection. The PAMP also provided a way to visualize and coordinate public art projects in the community, clarified requirements and procedures, and provided guidance to City departments, City Council, City commissions, and private developers.

Following approval of the PAMP, two ordinances were adopted into the City's Municipal Code: Title 10, Chapter 10, requiring a public art element for private development, and Title 7, Chapter 3, requiring public art for major City construction projects. From the Master Plan and these two ordinances, the City's Public Art Program (thereafter staffed through the Bedford Gallery) was created.

The City's commitment to a vibrant Public Art Program was reinforced by its General Plan, adopted in 2005. Walnut Creek's General Plan 2025 Chapter 2, Goal 12 calls for the City to "Maintain and enhance Walnut Creek's position as a leading regional cultural and arts center." Two of the actions outlined by this goal provide for, and require, installations of public art on both private and City property in accordance with the Public Art Master Plan.

Since its inception, the Public Art Program has overseen the selection process for many private and municipal projects. In 2009 and in 2010, the City Council amended the original ordinance that guides public art in private development (Chapter 10 of the Municipal Code, Public Art) to update the PAMP to better align with the changing patterns of private development.

2016 Update

As with any master plan, the PAMP requires a review periodically to determine if updates are necessary in response both to development in Walnut Creek and to trends in the field of public art. As part of its 2012-14 Work Plan, City Council indicated the need for the PAMP to be thoroughly reviewed to evaluate whether the ordinances are being followed and whether the elements of the PAMP adequately serve the needs of the community. This master plan is the culmination of those efforts.

PUBLIC ART DEFINITIONS AND ELIGIBILITY

“Works of art” means all forms of originally created visual art, whether contemporary or traditional. The creator of the work of art is an artist—a practitioner in the visual arts and is recognized as a professional of serious intent. The work of art shall not be designed by the project architect, landscape architect, or engineer. The artist brings creative vision to the project that elevates the design process and builds on the design and technical contributions that the project architect, landscape architect and engineers provide. The inclusion of an artist on the design team reflects a national best practice for public art programs.

The artist is also responsible for the fabrication of the public art element for the project. The goal for inclusion of the work of professional artists, however, should not preclude special situations, in which amateur competitions are held, or in which public artworks are created as part of an educational process, including the participation of students and other community members working with practicing artist/teachers in a municipal setting.

Eligible works of public art may include:

- Sculpture: free-standing, wall supported or suspended; kinetic, electronic; in any appropriate material or combination of materials.
- Murals or portable paintings for exterior display: singular works of art in which all text, graphics, and design elements are related to the artistic design.
- Two-dimensional works for interior display, including photography, original works of graphic art, limited edition prints, works on/of paper, and original paintings.
- Earthworks, fiber works, waterworks, neon, glass, mosaics, or any combination of forms of media including sound, literary elements, holographic images, or hybrids of media and new genres.
- Furnishings or fixtures, including bicycle racks, gates, railings, streetlights, or seating, if created by artists as unique elements.
- Artistic or aesthetic elements of the overall architecture or landscape design if created by a professional artist or a design team that includes a professional visual artist.

Ineligible Works of Art:

- Directional elements such as supergraphics, signage or color coding except where these elements are integral parts of an overall design created by a professional visual artist.
- Nominal “art objects” that are mass produced or of standard manufacture, such as playground equipment, fountains or statuary elements, unless incorporated into an original artwork by a project artist.
- Reproductions, by mechanical or other means, of original works of art.
- Decorative, ornamental, architectural or functional elements that are designed by the building architect, as opposed to elements created by an artist commissioned for that purpose.
- Landscape architecture and landscape gardening except where these elements are designed by a professional visual artist and/or are an integral part of the artwork by the artist.

PUBLIC ART MASTER PLAN AND MUNICIPAL & PRIVATE DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS

Implementation of the PAMP requires the awareness, cooperation and involvement of City departments and commissions, and the commitment of the developer (or City) to adequately fund artistic enhancements. This plan encourages the establishment of procedures that help identify opportunities for public art at the earliest stage of municipal and private development projects.

There is great value when an artist becomes an integral member of the design team at an early stage. The public art component is identified early in the process and funds available for art can be maximized within the use of the general construction budget. Elements such as lighting, seating, and floor or wall surfaces (such as tiles, mosaics, or murals) for buildings can be enriched with the inclusion of an artist on the design team. Likewise, outdoor elements such as pedestrian bridges, overpasses, fountains and water features, and trail markers are examples of items often included in a construction budget that can be transformed into public art with the addition of the artist's expertise.

The continuing and long-term viability of the City's public art program also requires the presence of dedicated public art staff or project consultants who can establish ongoing relationships with various City departments and the public. The continuing presence of such individual(s) will facilitate the identification, management, and completion of successful public art projects.

Public art fees and, therefore, the funding for public art projects in Walnut Creek are established through City ordinance, adopted by the City Council. In establishing the fees for both municipal and private development public art projects, the City Council will consider both the comparability of the fees with other cities and the total cost of development fees.

Public Art in Private Development Projects

In Walnut Creek, the Community & Economic Development Department (CED) is involved in the initial phase of private development projects. CED staff is responsible for informing private developers of the public art requirement (whether via public art installation or contribution to the Public Art Fund) and encouraging early input on public art opportunities.

When processing development projects that meet the requirements for a public art project, CED staff is also responsible for informing and coordinating with ARCS staff. Projects shall be referred to Arts, Recreation & Community Services Department (ARCS) staff early in the process to enable review, comment and recommendation on what public art opportunities should be considered by the applicant, staff and the Arts Commission.

The public art budget for private development projects will be based on a percentage of construction costs. City ordinance and/or the adopted fees and charges will establish what is to be included in the definition of construction costs as well as the appropriate fees. There is no exemption for structures that have existing public art from previous development.

The owner of the project retains responsibility for maintenance and regular upkeep of any public art enhancements. If, for any reason, the required public art in a project is removed, destroyed, or has deteriorated, the owner is responsible for replacement with comparable artwork. The process for selecting replacement artwork must adhere to the PAMP.

Public Art in Municipal Projects

The City Engineering Division is involved in the initial phases of all municipal construction projects. Every two years, Engineering refers a draft Capital Budget document to ARCS Department staff and asks for their recommendation for the inclusion of appropriate public art. Involving Engineering and ARCS early in this process means project scope and allocated funding receive proper consideration, and allows staff to manage the public art selection process.

Funding for the creation, installation and administration of public art elements in municipal construction projects, either for new projects or for significant renovations, is included in the overall construction budget. The public art budget shall be established as a percentage of the construction cost as determined by City ordinance and/or fees and charges adopted by the City Council. Calculation of funding for municipal public art projects will exclude portions of projects with ineligible fund sources that cannot be used for public art.

Great opportunities exist in the development of community plazas, parks, and other public spaces to provide participatory public art elements that can be functional or aesthetic. The type of public art in these public spaces should be appropriate in scale to both the site and to public use. To enable the provision of public art elements in previously completed facilities or areas, City Council may contribute a block of dedicated funding from the General Fund to the Public Art Fund for public art projects in existing parks, gateways, medians, City buildings, and other related municipal sites. Funding for the conservation and maintenance of artwork, and for public art in areas that presently lack public art, includes funds from the General Fund and Public Art Fund. The City Council commitment is to annually contribute $10,000 from the General Fund to the Public Art Fund, with Council retaining the discretion to increase the annual contribution amount up to $50,000 from the year-end General Fund budget balance.

Because federal and state funds may also be available for public art projects included in urban renewal, parks, and open spaces, it is important to involve ARCS Department staff at the conception of these projects in order to take advantage of these opportunities. ARCS should take the lead in applying for outside funding six months to one year in advance of upcoming projects. It is important to include an opportunity and vehicle for public comment in all municipal public art projects.

PUBLIC ART FUND

The City maintains a Public Art Fund for private development projects where public art enhancements would normally be required, but where any of the following conditions exist:

- The location, siting or scale makes provisions of public art enhancements inappropriate or impossible;
- The applicant prefers not to integrate a public art element into the project; or
- The project budget is too small to realize a worthwhile public art project. (A reasonable budget threshold to achieve a successful public art project may be $50,000.)

In these cases, the PAMP has been revised such that a developer is encouraged, but not required, to pay the equivalent public art fee into the Public Art Fund maintained by the City. Such funds may enable art to be realized within the same Public Art Zone as the original funding source, as recommended by the Arts Commission and at the discretion of the City Council.

The Public Art Fund may be used to:

- Provide art on public sites;
- Acquire and install art;
- Maintain municipally owned art;
- Support exhibitions of public art; and
- Fund staffing and other administrative costs associated with the Public Art Program. (As a guideline, not more than 25% of the total staffing budget shall be allocated from the Public Art Fund.)

PUBLIC ART ZONES

The PAMP contains two Public Art Project Zones: the Core Area (as defined in the City's General Plan 2025) and Outside the Core Area. These zones are starting points for evaluating and prioritizing existing and potential future sites for public art in municipal projects. The zones are based on geographical, conceptual, and aesthetic considerations that City staff and community members have articulated. Contributions to the Public Art Fund may be allocated to the same zone from which they originated as a "return to source" method.

Sites for Municipal Public Art Projects

The following sites have been identified as suitable locations for municipal art projects and exhibits. When the Arts Commission elects to initiate a public art project, the Commission refers to this list as a guide to select a site. The Arts Commission periodically reviews, prioritizes and updates this list of public art sites. Sites for public art have been identified by three categories:

- Civic Pedestrian Areas
- Parks, Recreation Areas and Trails
- Roads and Gateways

In addition, each Zone contains specific goals by which to achieve these criteria.

Goals: Core Area

Create North-South and East-West oriented sightlines with artwork. The ideal would be to always have a piece of public art in sight. Place pedestrian-scale artworks in the retail district to encourage the public to spend time at the location. Place larger-scale work in locations that have more vehicle traffic and less pedestrian traffic. The potential sites include:

- Lesher Center for the Arts and North Locust Parking Garage
- North Broadway, at Broadway Garage and frontage
- South Locust Street Garage
- Civic Park (walkways, pads and park entries)
- Sidewalks, planters, street furniture (temporary exhibitions, benches, utility boxes, bike racks)
- Liberty Bell Plaza
- Alma Park
- Library Outdoor Plazas
- Olympic and South California Boulevard
- South Main Street entry at Creekside Drive
- Mount Diablo Boulevard exiting from Hwy 24 West
- Southwest corner of Mount Diablo Boulevard and North California Boulevard

Goals: Outside Core Area

Prioritize those sites that get the most visitors. Identify sites with harsh or uninviting transitions/entrances from hardscape to landscape and use public art to beautify the site and welcome visitors.

- Heather Farm Park: Clarke Pool area, Community Center area, park entry areas
- Civic Arts Education, Shadelands Campus, Ygnacio Valley Road at Wiget Lane
- Larkey Park: Larkey Pool area, Lindsay Wildlife area
- Iron Horse Trail Overcrossing site
- Arbolado Park
- Walden Park
- Tice Valley Park
- Other City parks
- I-680/North Main Street area
- North Main Street entry
- South Broadway/Rudgear Road at I-680
- Ygnacio Valley Road, west of Oak Grove Road
- South Broadway Extension between Rudgear and Newell

PROCEDURES FOR SELECTING PUBLIC ART FOR PRIVATE DEVELOPMENT

To ensure a successful public art project, the City encourages the developer to engage an art consultant to identify artists and facilitate the process, and to include the artist on the project design team early in the design development process. The acquisition of works of public art under the program requires a commitment by the developer or owner to preserve, protect and permanently display the work of art in its original condition at the time of installation. The facility owner is responsible for routine maintenance, conservation, and preservation of the work of art.

While the identification of artist and the funding of artwork are the responsibility of the applicant, the placement is subject to review by the Arts Commission. The Arts Commission reviews the placement of the art elements to ensure that they are within scale for both the project and its setting. The proposed artist and artwork are then reviewed and recommended by ARCS staff and considered for approval by the Arts Commission.

Artwork must be commensurate with the scale of development in terms of visibility, compatibility with architecture and landscape, and impact on the surrounding environment.

To achieve these goals, ARCS staff meets with the developer and recommends an art consultant to assist with expediting and navigating the process. Staff and the developer's team work to identify the public meetings necessary to achieve the goals of approving the site, artist and artwork. The following process is recommended, though some flexibility in the actual process and number of meetings may be required based on the project's timing and complexity.

Public Meeting 1: Approve Artists and Sites

The developer, art consultant, and staff provide the Arts Commission with an overview of the project, artist(s) and possible art sites. DRC will have reviewed the proposed development and provided input on potential public art locations. The Arts Commission then reviews and considers approval of sites and artists identified by the developer based on the integration of the potential site with the quality of the artist and his or her conceptual vision.

With guidance from "Criteria for Selection of Artwork", developed outside of the Master Plan, sites are reviewed and approved for:

- Location
- Scale
- Accessibility
- Visibility

Artists are reviewed and may be approved based on:

- Artistic vision
- Quality of their professional practitioner's body of work
- Educational background
- Past public commissions
- Exhibition record
- Publications

Public Meeting 2: Art Plan Concept (Study Session)

The developer, art consultant, artist, and staff bring a specific conceptual art plan to the Arts Commission. Presentation materials include plans, drawings and a written narrative of the public art concept. The design/concept is reviewed for:

- Artistic quality (vision, originality)
- Location
- Scale
- Accessibility
- Visibility
- Quality and durability of materials
- Maintenance
- Safety

The Arts Commission reviews the concept and provides feedback to the artist before the design is finalized. Early review and feedback reduces (and ideally eliminates) later revisions to more formal design documents. Staff records comments and feedback and includes them in the subsequent staff report for approval of the artwork (Meeting 3).

Public Meeting 3: Final Art Plan (Meetings 2 and 3 may be combined at staff's discretion, depending on the project.)

The art consultant, developer, artist, and staff bring a final art plan to the Arts Commission for review and approval. The final art plan should address any concerns or questions that arose at prior Arts Commission meetings. The final art plan should include the following to be considered for final approval. At this meeting, the Arts Commission considers a recommendation to City Council to accept the project.

Final narrative of the project may include:

- Conceptual description of the project
- Material samples—for review of durability, maintenance, and public safety
- A two- or three-dimensional maquette
- Final layout (including base when applicable)
- Lighting plan when relevant
- Fabrication plan and process
- Signage for art piece (per Public Art Program template)
- Maintenance plan
- Surrounding landscape and fencing design, if relevant to the project
- Budget for project (including lighting, landscape and water features designed by artist)

PROCEDURES FOR SELECTING PUBLIC ART FOR MUNICIPAL PROJECTS

Selection methods for municipal public art include site-specific commissions (open competitions or invitational), acquisition of already completed works, rental or loan, and gift. Selection Panels for specific projects are established by the Arts Commission following recommendation by ARCS staff. The role of the Selection Panel is to assist in selecting qualified artists to be considered for a project. The number of members and the composition of the committee depend on the size, location, and complexity of each project. Normally, the Selection Panel consists of five to eight individuals including City Council member(s), a Design Review Commissioner, an Arts Commissioner, the project architect, a community member, one to two visual arts professionals, and a representative of the municipal agency where the artwork will be sited.

In determining the appropriate selection procedure, the potential project should be examined and evaluated within the context of the goals for the overall Public Art Program. The most important criterion for choosing a selection procedure is to determine which one will result in the best possible work of art for that project.

Privately Owned Artwork Sited on Municipal Property

A private citizen or corporation may propose to place a privately owned work of art on municipal property for display to the general public. In such cases, all costs including purchase or fabrication of the work, engineering, installation, insurance and indemnification of the City, and maintenance and conservation of the artwork will be borne by the artwork's owner. The owner will also bear the costs of removing the artwork and restoring the site to its prior condition at such time as the owner chooses to remove the artwork, or upon request by the City.

Approval process for placement of privately owned work on municipal property

1. ARCS staff reviews for artistic merit, community and site appropriateness, visibility and ease of access for the public, liability, maintenance and conservation requirements, installation issues, and all documentation.
2. ARCS staff consults with all impacted City departments and commissions and seeks approval as necessary.
3. ARCS staff presents to the Arts Commission to approve or reject the proposed installation of private artwork on municipal property.

Timeline: Immediate written communication expressing either refusal or pursuit of approval through the appropriate approval process; final decision should be made within three months.

MURALS

Murals are appropriate for public art and are defined as singular works of art in which all text, graphics, and design elements are related to the artistic design. ARCS and the Arts Commission are responsible for mural review and approval and all murals are subject to review for maintenance or removal. Murals proposed to fulfill a new private or municipal development project or remodel requirement fall under Private Development Public Art Projects. Murals work best on large surfaces viewers can see while traversing surface streets and/or freeways.

Murals on Private Property

Murals will be prioritized for placement on existing private properties as well as new developments. Public Art Mural Design Guidelines will allow private property owners to propose murals for their sites, to be evaluated by ARCS staff and approved by the Arts Commission.

Murals on Municipal Property

Opportunities exist for temporary, long-term and permanent placement on municipal properties, as well as public/private collaboration. Suggestions for mural locations on municipal property include, but are not limited to:

- Lesher Center tower and walls (murals and light)
- Community Centers
- Tice Valley Gym
- Clay Arts building
- Parking Garages
- Crosswalks
